U.S. Sends More Troops, Guns Toward Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Young announced the figure of more than 4,000, well along toward the 5,000-man total Washington said will be sent here, and noted the movement still is in progress.

The ambassador told a news conference the United States would like to see other forces from the eight-nation Southeast Asia Treaty Organization sent to Thailand. All other members except France have indicated they are willing to send units if asked.

Top U.S. Commander

Gen. Paul D. Harkins, top U.S. military commander in Southeast Asia, completed inspection of the nearly 3,000 U.S. soldiers and Marines already here and said, "They have the situation well in hand."

En route to join these units from Hawaii is a 1,000-man force of support elements, plus at least tanks and artillery.

While the U.S. forces entered Thailand to protect it from any infiltration by Communist forces that swept across northern Laos next door, Peiping and Moscow talked darkly of gathering war clouds.

People's Daily, the official voice of Red China, declared the Chinese people "will not put up with the establishment near China of new U.S. military centers directed against China."

Threat To China

"The aggressive actions of the United States in Southeast Asia constitute a serious threat to the security of China," the newspaper added. "The Chinese people cannot remain indifferent to this."

In similar vein, "Observer," writing in the Soviet Communist newspaper Pravda, asserted the U.S. landing of troops in Thailand may cause retaliatory action from the other side. Articles signed "Observer" usually have the highest backing.

Federal Control Inevitable Warns National PTA Leader

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—"Federal control of education in this country is inevitable if the states and local communities do not make much greater efforts to upgrade their schools."

That blunt warning came Sunday from Mrs. Clifford N. Jenkins, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, which opened its 65th annual convention here.

"Poor schools mean a waste of manpower that the United States cannot afford," Mrs. Jenkins said in an interview.

"If local communities and the states fail to improve their school systems, we can expect the federal government to move in. There is already precedent in the National Defense Education Act."

Some Support Necessary

Mrs. Jenkins said some form of federal support of education is necessary and justifiable, providing that:

- Federal funds are used for public, tax-supported schools only.
- The federal funds are distributed to state departments of education, and become state funds.
- The federal legislation stipulate that the states continue to put forth their best efforts, so that federal funds are not substituted for state funds.
- There is local control of education (although in some cases this would be state control).

"The national congress is not pushing any particular legislation now pending," Mrs. Jenkins said. "We believe there must be some federal support, but only with those limitations."

"If we don't get the right kind of a federal program, we certainly will get the wrong kind. The National Defense Education Act is a form of federal control, because it stresses emphasis on certain parts of the curriculum—science, mathematics and modern foreign languages."

"We must keep these decisions for the states and local communities."

Scotland Apologizes To Mrs. JFK

LONDON (AP) — An apology went out from Scotland Sunday for the use of Jacqueline Kennedy's signed photograph in a pamphlet publicizing Scottish tweed.

The pamphlet irritated officials at the American Embassy in London. They complained it showed scant respect for the U.S. president's wife to use her picture without permission in a trade promotion stunt.

"If any American company should do this with a picture of the queen it would be regarded as being in extremely bad taste," one official said.

Mrs. Kennedy sent the signed picture to two Scottish weaver women on the Hebrides Island of Lewis, praising them for the beautiful work they did on two lengths of tweed presented to her as a gift from the people of Lewis.

The tweed company employing the weaver women decided to send copies of the photograph to all its departments as a morale booster. The order for copies was given to a firm called Export Drive, Ltd., which normally handles the tweed company's publicity.

In Lewis the tweed firm's sales director, Mary Perrins, explained, "Unfortunately, owing to the absence abroad of the directors of Export Drive and without our knowledge a press release was made of the story."

Mrs. Perrins said she "heartily regrets that it should appear as though it had been intended to make use of Mrs. Kennedy's gracious gesture for advertising."

Good Morning!

Rep. F. E. Walter Is Rally Guest Speaker

VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP) — Rep. Francis Walter, D-Pa., who heads the House Committee on Un-American Activities, warned Sunday Communists will adopt and then drop just as easily any principle in order to further their cause.

Walter, in a speech prepared for an "America Beloved" rally said:

"To say the least, a Communist is a hypocrite and totally lacking in morality, as we know it. Communism depends not only upon subversion and coercion, but lies and double talk to achieve its ends."

He said a communist will "at a moment's notice, adopt any principle—including one to which he is violently opposed—in order to further the cause of communism. Also, he will forsake the cause of communism."

Refers To Writings

He referred to writings by members of the Communist party in the United States and those who sympathize with them and said:

"Never in our history has so large a group of so-called united states citizens been so disloyal—so immoral — to 'America Beloved.' Never has a group in this country so blatantly abused the freedoms which have made America the envy and wonder-of the world."

Walter, who has served 29 years in Congress, added:

"It is hard for me to decide sometimes whether it is to America's credit or shame that treasonous Communist activities have been permitted on such scale for so many years without more vigorous effort being made to end them."

He said that in communism "there is no room for God—and therefore no room for any fixed unchanging morality..."

"And it is here that we come to the essence of the difference between Americanism and Communism, the essence of the cold war. 'Not only is there room for God, for morality, for fixed ethical standards for love and patriotism in Americanism, but Americanism demands these things—they are all part of the American tradition.'"

Red Turncoat Returns Home From Russia

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Robert Webster, an American technician who gave up his citizenship and his family for Russia, returned to home Sunday night "a little confused and tired."

Webster arrived at Greater Pittsburgh Airport aboard a Trans World Airline jet from New York.

The 33-year-old Webster, who left his wife and two children when he went to Russia, talked with newsmen as he rushed to a taxi-cab. He said he was going home to nearby Zelienople "to rest a little and live with my father."

Behind him in Leningrad Webster left a Russian girl and the child she bore him.

He told newsmen at New York International Airport he hoped for a reconciliation with his wife, who has since filed a divorce action.

He said in Pittsburgh, "I missed my children and family and wife of course."

Webster had gone to Russia in 1939 to set up a Rand Corp. plastics exhibit in Moscow. In October of that year, he appeared at the American Embassy, turned in his passport and renounced his U. S. citizenship.

Three months later, however, Webster had changed his mind. He returned to the Embassy and as for a permit to reenter the United States. He was turned down and had to wait a year before he could apply again.

A few days ago, Webster received permission to leave Russia and return to the United States.

Webster was nervous during a brief interview with newsmen in New York and was met at the airport by two men who identified themselves as being with the Rand Corp.

One of them was James Rand III, president of the corporation, who said he felt a responsibility for Webster and would try to get him a job in this country again, though not with his own firm.

Antisegregationists Stir Up Opposition

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Antisegregationists are stirring up opposition to the government's sabotage bill, which comes up in Parliament this week. Africa's biggest political fight of the year could ensue.

Demonstrations throughout the past week have been punctuated by thrown eggs, tomatoes and stink bombs.

A group of antisegregationist white women were splattered with eggs and tomatoes Saturday night on the steps of City Hall as they sought to protest against the government bill. Their meeting was broken up by husky white nationalists youths singing Afrikaner songs.

Earlier in the day, riot police in Durban were called out to handle a demonstration by a multi-racial group that included anti-segregationist author Alan Paton.

Hold Protest Meeting

A protest meeting inside Johannesburg's City Hall last week was interrupted by stink bombs.

The sabotage bill, sponsored by Justice Minister Balthazar Vorster, provides the death penalty for sabotage.

The government claims the bill is needed to help combat communism and other forms of internal subversion in this country, where nonwhites outnumber whites nearly 50.

But opponents of Vorster's measure—which they say is really Prime Minister Hendrik F. Verwoerd's—charge the powers sought are so unnecessarily broad that they threaten civil liberties and aim to silence foes of the segregationist government.

Opponents also argue that Vorster—who was interned as a suspected subversive during World War II—is not the safest man to administer such a law.

Leading Opposition

Leading opposition to the bill are white liberals, including lawyers and most English-language newspapers. With Verwoerd's overwhelming majority in Parliament, opponents see virtually no chance of killing the bill but they hope popular protest will bring softening amendments.

France Will Not Be Led By Any Nation

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle declared Sunday that France insists on playing its own role in world affairs and will not be led by anyone.

Two former premiers bitterly attacked him for his views.

Winding up a four-day tour through the provinces, the president told a crowd of thousands in the city of Limoges, "France has a great international role to play, a great duty toward all men. From all time, it has been ever so."

"To be sure," he said, "we have friends, allies. (France) forms part of the Atlantic Alliance, which is necessary to the free world. But, inside this Atlantic alliance, she intends to be France. She intends to have her will, her personality, her soul, her action and her policy."

In Paris former Socialist Premier Guy Mollet assailed De Gaulle for showing what he called "Americophobia"—a dislike of America—and urged his party to prepare for a possible crisis of democracy in France.

"The chief of state," Mollet told the Socialist National Council, "considers that France can be an ally or a partner, but cannot in any way be subjected to the decisions of another, even to the decisions of organizations she belongs to."

The party leadership adopted a resolution accusing De Gaulle of leading France into an "anti-European and anti-Atlantic" policy. The resolution assailed De Gaulle's position as a move toward isolation and neutralism.

Time Bomb Is Found In Movie

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—Police said they found a time bomb planted in a movie theater at the Soviet Trade Fair early Sunday. A former air force officer, involved in an abortive Amazon revolt in 1956, was arrested and admitted planting it, police said.

Gov. Carlos Lacerda ordered the fair grounds cleared of an estimated 10,000 people Saturday night after police received a tip the bomb had been planted and set to explode at 11:15 p.m. It failed to go off, police said, and they found it in the projection booth of the movie theater shortly after midnight. One report said the bomb's timing device would have set off the explosion in another 20 minutes.

Fooling The People 3 Congressmen Say

WASHINGTON (AP) — While President Kennedy was appealing Sunday for public support of his plan for health care for the elderly, three Republican members of Congress were accusing him of trying to fool the people.

Sens. Bourke Hickenlooper of Iowa and Homer E. Capehart of Indiana joined Rep. Thomas B. Curtis of Missouri in centering fire on the fact that the Social Security program sponsored by the administration does not provide for payment of doctors' fees.

Thus, they said in separate but similar statements, Kennedy should not apply the term "medical care" to his program, which is generally opposed by Republicans in Congress.

Under False Colors

Hickenlooper accused Kennedy of flying under false colors by plugging his health bill for the elderly as a medical care plan.

Hickenlooper, who heads the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said since the administration's bill contains no provision for paying doctors' fees "it is a fraud to try to sell it to the American people" as a medical care bill.

Capehart, in a statement recorded for radio broadcast in Indiana, said:

"Does this proposal do what they maintain it would do or is it simply something they are trying to sell the elderly people of America, and when once they get to the point where they need the benefits, they'll get no benefits."

Curtis, speaking on a recorded radio interview program MESS "What's the issue?" said:

"It's fooling the people, and particularly the older people, in telling them that this will cover their health costs. They are still going to have to take care of 75 per cent of them."

Kennedy Says Medical Bill Will Pass

NEW YORK (AP) — President Kennedy said Sunday his program for medical care of the aged under Social Security will pass Congress this year, or, as the tide comes in—next year.

The President told a crowd of more than 17,000 at Madison Square Garden — most of them gray-haired prospective beneficiaries of the program — that their own support will be vitally needed to get the plan into law.

The support of the nation's older people is necessary, Kennedy said, "if this or any other type of progressive legislation is to pass."

Rousing Reception

The crowd at the rally, held to support the medical care proposal, gave Kennedy a more rousing reception than he got at the same arena Saturday night when Democrats gave him a million-dollar "birthday salute." The President will be 45 on May 29.

Referring to a threat of a group of New Jersey doctors to refuse to treat patients under the Kennedy plan if it is passed, Kennedy said, "I know that not a single doctor, if the bill is passed, is going to refuse to treat any patient."

However, the President said he believes the doctors in New Jersey "do not comprehend what I am trying to do."

In fact, he added, at least half the mail he has received on the King-Anderson bill, the administration proposal, has been wholly misinformed about its provisions.

He urged that doctors throughout the country write to him, to Welfare Secretary Abraham A. Ribicoff or to the bill's sponsors, Rep. Cecil R. King, D-Calif., and Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., and get a concise explanation of the proposal.

JFK Suggests

Kennedy suggested this as an alternative to reading the Journal of the American Medical Association, which has violently attacked the King-Anderson bill.

Not all political experts are as sure as Kennedy that the bill will become law. It has been bottled up in the House Ways and Means Committee since last session.

The rally here was the highlight of a nationwide appeal Sunday for support of the bill, through 33 rallies across the nation sponsored by the National Council of Senior Citizens for Health Care through Social Security.

Kennedy said the meeting at the Garden, which brought hundreds of the elderly from the metropolitan area and from as far away as Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and the others like it across the country prove "that this is a problem for which the solution is long overdue."

Sick, Alone And Broke

Attacking arguments that the medicare program would "sap individual self-reliance," the President said it is his opinion that what saps self-reliance "is to be sick, alone and broke."

In a lighter vein, which brought a laugh from his audience, the President noted that he had paid several visits in the last two days to his sick father, Joseph P. Kennedy, in a rehabilitation institute here.

"He can pay his bills," the President said. "If he couldn't, I would have to, and I'm not as well off as he is."

Kennedy reminded his audience that "what we are now talking about doing, most countries of Europe did years ago."

"In Britain," he added, "They did it 30 years ago."

Oppose The Bill

He said Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., and Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., who head the Senate and House committees considering administration proposals, oppose the Kennedy bill.

On the other hand, Javits criticized the American Medical Association for opposing everything in way of new legislation and sticking with the Kerr-Mills program now on the statute books.

Javits said one of the big improvements his bill offers over Kennedy's is to provide for doctors' fees in addition to the hospital services proposed in the President's bill.

Submarine Is Used To Save Youth

DETROIT (AP) — A Toledo, Ohio, youth emerged safe and well from a submarine decompression chamber Sunday after spending a tense four hours recovering from the dread underwater bends.

Doctors credited the availability of the chamber on the U.S. Navy sub Cero, docked here during Armed Forces Week, for saving the life of skin diver Richard Brewer, 15.

Brewer suffered the bends while skin diving in the Whitehouse Quarry, 15 miles south of Toledo, late Saturday.

Liberal Education Is Baccalaureate Talk

"THERE is one object of true education, and that is the development of the mind and the will; there is one agent for its achievement, and that is, that must be, the liberal arts," Dr. Harold Gill Reuschlein told the graduating class of the East Stroudsburg State College yesterday at their Baccalaureate program.

Dr. Reuschlein, the dean of the law school at Villanova University, spoke on the topic, "To Whom Much Is Given." He pointed out that "... the professional, the lawyer, engineer, teacher of today must know more than the rules of law, than the data of stress and strain, than the methods of the classroom — he must know the humanities."

Many Careers
Dean Reuschlein, whose career has included that of history professor, lawyer, army Colonel, author, told the prospective graduates that technical skills in any particular field are easily acquired after the basic liberal education, and that "... It is comparatively easy for an educated man to move, with success, from one field to another, without years of technical training. A good teacher may well become a successful business man, or vice versa."

He listed four objectives of basic liberal education as: the acquisition of recognized center values based either on religion or philosophy; the mastery of the scientific method; the possession of classified facts and relationships, and the joy, or the serenity that comes with understanding.

The Baccalaureate program was preceded by a full academic procession of the administrative officers and faculty of the college. The Rev. John A. Bollier delivered the invocation and the benediction. The college choir sang Dawson's "There Is A Balm In Gilead," and a negro spiritual, "In That Great Morning."

After the Baccalaureate exercises, a reception for the prospective graduates was given by the president and the board of trustees. A dinner in the college dining room, attended by the graduates and members of the faculty followed.

Lester Burlein Considered For GOP Post

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Republican State Committee will reorganize June 16 in Philadelphia, but State Chairman George I. Bloom remained non-committal Sunday as to his position at that time.

Bloom said the offices of chairman, vice chairman, secretary and treasurer will be filled at the biennial reorganization meeting but would not say if he would be a candidate for re-election.

Reports have reached Harrisburg that several influential members of the GOP State Finance Committee are opposed to Bloom's re-election.

Among those mentioned as a possible successor is Lester Burlein, Honesdale, the Wayne County GOP chairman.

However, Burlein, as reported in the Philadelphia Sunday Bulletin, said he had heard of the report but was not taking it seriously.

Burlein served as assistant primary campaign chairman for the Republican ticket. In response to the question, would he accept the job on a draft, he said:

"I'd have to give that some serious thought."

Bloom, a Washington, Pa., lawyer, has been chairman of the state GOP since 1956. His close friends say he will seek another term.

But Bloom for the present would go no further than to say: "I still want to do anything I can to help the Republican party in Pennsylvania."

Other officeholders of the state committee whose posts will be up for election are Mrs. Ruth Glenn Pennell, Juniata County, vice chairman; Mrs. Louise Russell, Luzerne County, secretary, and Alan Emien, Montgomery County, treasurer.

Police Search For Secret Group

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli police are investigating a secret organization called the Revenging Hand which is reported planning an attempt on the life of Gen. Karl van Horn, chief of the staff of the Palestine U.N. truce supervision organization.

Police inquiries began after several Israeli newspapers received letters saying the death sentence has been pronounced on Van Horn. The letters were signed The Revenging Hand.

Van Horn recently was strongly criticized in Israel for his report on the Sea of Galilee situation following Israeli-Syrian clashes in March, after which Israel was censured by the U.N. Security Council.

THE population of San Salvador has passed the 2,500,000 mark. This means an average of more than 300 persons per square mile.

Kinkajou Hunt In Eastburg

RESIDENTS of the Berwick Heights section of East Stroudsburg on Saturday night had an impromptu kinkajou hunt, although at the time nobody knew what they'd found.

Discovered in a tree in the back of the Sterner residence by Mrs. Sterner was a woolly animal with a long tail and a squeaky voice. With flashlights and searchlights the neighbors examined him but nobody could agree what they were seeing.

"It's a weasel," claimed one pointing to the long sort of snaky body; "It's a monkey," said another, pointing to the prehensile tail; "It's a wild cat," conjectured still another because of its three-foot size.

Finally, the police arrived with the news that it was a kinkajou escaped from the circus.

The dictionary defines a kinkajou as a nocturnal, arboreal, carnivorous mammal, native to Mexico and Central America with a slender body, prehensile tail, soft woolly yellowish brown fur and claims that it can be easily tamed.

The assembled multitude, however, had little success in taming it last night. A valuable animal, they decided against shooting it and have set a trap. Up until last night, they had not been successful.

Two Injured In Four-Car Crash Sunday

TWO PEOPLE were injured in a four-car crash on Brown's Hill, Bangor-East Bangor Highway yesterday at 8 p.m.

Glenwood T. Lewis, Bangor chief of police, identified the injured as Richard Smith, Broadway Hotel, Bangor, and Florence Groner, 15, Market St., Bangor, passenger in Smith's car. They were taken to Easton Hospital. Smith was treated and released. Miss Groner was admitted with lacerations of the face and right knee. She was listed as satisfactory by a hospital spokesman late last night.

Police said Smith tried to pass a car operated by Delmar Wickett, 51, East Bangor, and failed to return to the right lane when cars approached from the other direction.

Smith told police his brakes failed. The collision forced the car operated by Mrs. Harry Seaman, Delaware Water Gap, off the road. The Seaman vehicle left the highway, crossed two railroad tracks and came to rest at an embankment near the Exallite Plant.

Police estimated the Seaman and Smith vehicles as being total losses.

Mrs. Seaman was attended at the scene by Dr. J. Earl Brackbill of Bangor who released her to return home with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Dutt, Mount Bethel anti her husband.

Harry Seaman, a passenger with his wife, was uninjured.

Assisting in the investigation are Patrolman Walter Herd, Bangor, and Patrolman Fred Oyer, East Bangor.

Traffic was directed in one lane for more than one hour following the crash.

A License To Live

More than 84,000,00 of today's 183,000,000 Americans are licensed to drive a motor vehicle. That is nearly half of the nation's entire population. And it is a major shame that all too often these licenses become licenses for recklessness.

Each year more than 10,000,000 traffic accidents occur in the United States. The shocking fact is that only two out of every ten are caused by chronically reckless, irresponsible drivers. The other 80 percent is the disgraceful handiwork of you and me, the "good drivers" and "god" citizens of our community and our nation.

Why we do it is for heaven to judge. But the fact is that 8,000,000 times a year we slip; we get too cocky . . . too headstrong . . . or to irate . . . or simply too careless . . . and we windup lamenting "if only . . ."

To drive home our part in the nations' critical traffic disgrace and to remind us of our individual responsibility, local jaycees, in cooperation with the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce and Liberty Mutual Insurance Company, are conducting a safe-driving campaign in this area. Under the theme "Don't be an If-Only Driver," the Jaycees are pledged to the unenviable task of saving us (and others) from ourselves. Surely we have every selfish—and humanitarian—reason for applauding and supporting their efforts.

If we take their program to heart . . . if we heed their message . . . if we practice what we know to be right . . . our drivers' licenses can become licenses to live and to let live.

Long after the Jaycees' If-Only Program has come and gone, we will drive free from accidents if only we remember their message: On the highway your safety is up to you!

Curious Alternatives

President Kennedy presented a curious set of alternatives to American voters in his address to the United Auto Workers Convention early this month.

It was there that he told Big Labor, as he told Big Business last month, that his economic policy is to hold down wages and prices, stop inflation, make American goods more competitive, stop the loss of gold.

But he went a step further with his labor audience, saying that if the country didn't like his economic policies it could get another President. Presumably this also was directed to business and the public as a whole.

His words were: "I believe it is the business of the President of the United States to concern himself with the general welfare and the public interest. And if the people believe that it is not, then they should secure the services of a new President of the United States."

George Sokolsky

The Name Is Farley

All sorts of Democratic persons in New York State offer themselves as candidates for the Governorship. It is a good year to run because Democrats believe that there is a chance that Governor Rockefeller can be defeated.

Unfortunately most of the names thus far mentioned are nondescript from a political standpoint. If one candidate is popularly known in his own particular balliwick, he is not known elsewhere. An aspirant must fill all the provisions of a formula that fits New York State. He must:

1. Have a following among the more conservative Democrats upstate;
2. Be acceptable to the Reform Democrats of New York City;
3. Be acceptable to the Liberal Party;
4. Have such a reputation that he will draw away Republican votes from Rockefeller;
5. Be acceptable to the Kennedy Administration and to Mayor Wagner who is the virtual leader of the Democratic Party in New York.

The man who fits this bill is silent. He will not say Yes! and he will not say No! He does not need the job, as he has one that pays more and gives him a chance to travel throughout the world. He manages to attend public luncheons and dinners every day. The name is James A. Farley, familiarly known as Big Jim. To those who still remember it, he was responsible for Franklin D. Roosevelt becoming President of the United States and he served as Postmaster General. He broke with Roosevelt over the Third Term and the American people endorsed his view by passing the 22nd Amendment to the Constitution.

Farley is obviously popular, not because he is neutral or all things to all men, but because he is an independent person who turns out to be right generally. The only objection I have heard to the candidacy of Big Jim is that he is old, 74 years old. In our modern world, age is not a matter of years but of arteries and ulcers and such matters. Farley possesses the stamina of a man in his 50's.

If this description of the man seems excessively enthusiastic, biased, partial, I can only admit that the description is correct. And that is one reason why I believe that Farley can be elected. So many Republicans believe that if Farley ran against Rockefeller, he would vote for Farley and many Democrats say that they will not vote for the other names mentioned either for fractional reasons, or because the persons mentioned have insufficient stature to warrant running.

The story goes the rounds that Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., is a candidate for the office of Governor. He has actually not lived in New York State for a number of years. He has lived in Washington, D. C. where he is in the automobile sales business. Even when he ran for Congress, his address, at one time, was the up-town Esplanade Hotel where he had a room. It was obviously a makeshift address.

It is doubtful that Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., can fit all the conditions stated above. Certainly he would draw no Republican votes from Nelson Rockefeller. While he bears his father's name, which means much in New York City, it is clear that name is a liability so far as Republicans and many independent voters are concerned.

New York State has about 17,000,000 persons, which is equivalent to the population of the whole of Canada. The population is very mixed: there are many large cities and many rural areas; the racial complex is Italian, Irish, German, Negro, Puerto Rican, Jewish, variously Slav, with a large Protestant Anglo-Saxon and Dutch rural and suburban voting element. The strongest religious group, from a political standpoint, is the Roman Catholic.

Block voting is not unusual in New York State and a candidate must have, not an appeal to all groups, but surely no basic antagonism. The Italo-Americans, most of whom are Democrats, regard themselves as having been discriminated against politically and they will have to be given consideration but like all groups which mature in this country and are on the verge of assimilation, they would not want candidates of their nationality to be persons of less significance than others on the ticket. They would want a top-notch personality. The Italo-Americans probably constitute the largest voting group in the State.

This is the present situation. It could change, of course.

Having 'Stop' Trouble

The Pennsylvania Story

Gubernatorial Drive May Be Confusing

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — The primary election is now out of the way and in the months to come the gubernatorial candidates will wage a torrid campaign that may prove (to understate it) confusing to many a Keystone State voter.

But one fact stands out above the confusion that has already been created by various charges and counter-charges. The industrial development situation in Pennsylvania will be handled with kid gloves.

Richardson Dilworth, the choice of the Democrats for the office of Governor, has already indicated that he will build upon the policies set by Governors Leader and Lawrence, at least so far as industrial development is concerned. Beyond that, look for some firm imaginative additions to the program as the Dilworth platform unfolds.

William Scranton, the standard-bearer of the Republican Party has also stated that he thinks the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority (PIDA) is doing a good job, and although he has expressed a desire to add to the pattern established seven years ago, his proposals have not yet been itemized.

Scranton comes from the anthracite region, hard hit years ago when the bottom fell out of the coal industry and people turned to gas and oil as substitutes for coal.

During the seven year the PIDA Board has been in existence there have been 211 loans approved for construction of new plants, or expansion of existing industries. The projects financed in part by these loans, when completed and in full operation, will have created 34,264 jobs.

Luzerne County, an important part of the anthracite region has received 35 of these loans, and out of the 34,000 jobs created since George Leader started PIDA, over 8,000 will go into Luzerne County alone.

Lackawanna County, which is the home county of the Republican candidates has received 12 loans, which will result in over 2,000 jobs.

All of which means that almost one-fourth of the PIDA loans have been concentrated in two of the hardest hit anthracite region counties, with the result that almost one-third of the newly-created jobs are also going into the two counties.

Under the circumstances there is reason to believe that the GOP standard-bearer is well aware of the benefits that have come into his home environment as a result of the nationally famous policies of the PIDA Board.

Some of these companies that have located in the coal regions are among the largest in the Nation, and a few have not only found the area excellent for industrial purposes, but have seen fit to expand their facilities.

Dilworth, meanwhile, is no stranger to the creation of industrial opportunities. A major function in his administration of Philadelphia was industrial and commercial development. Philadelphia finished 1961 with 138 industrial projects lured in from out-of-state and accounting for 5,400 new job opportunities in new or existing facilities valued at $7,146,000. The Philadelphia Industrial Development Commission, with an aggressive program of industrial relations, notes that through community cooperation another 1,697 jobs were retained in Philadelphia after management had made noises like it was looking for greener pastures.

There will be discussions on other subjects to enliven the campaign during the next six months, but certainly the Leader-Lawrence pattern in industrial development should get the solid support of both the gubernatorial candidates and the leaders in both political parties — at least basically.

Actually — what other course is there!

About Town

From an "advance" on money in the current horizon:

Whatever Became of Money? By Stephen White. Mr. White, talks about our "new economy, in which money has gone out of style." In the old days if you wanted to open an account in a department store, your entire life was investigated in depth. Today, if you produce a large banknote in a department store, "salesgirls go into a state of shock, making wild uncoordinated gestures over their salesbooks." Produce a credit card and purchase that can consume half a day when cash is involved, can be completed in three minutes flat. "I liked money," concludes Mr. White. "There was something special about it."

This column takes due notice of the American Medical Association's opposition to the medical care for the aged plan, based mainly on its being financed through Social Security. It is very easy for us to make up our minds about the controversial plan . . . if the AMA is against it we're for it—though it is comforting to have a physician around the operating table.

This column is now going into its 18th year, including the jokes. "Adenauer suffers from senile delinquency whereas our problem is the 13-year-itch."

From reading the letters to the editor I am struck with the fact that anyone with whom the letter-writer disagrees automatically becomes a part of a hybrid mule.

Before tranquilizers there was a gimmick to make you sleep . . . it was called work.

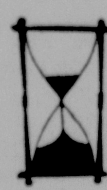

The theater usher was astonished to see a kangaroo sitting in the front row munching peanuts.

"My Lord," he said, "I thought the machine was broken."

A small girl was entertaining the visitors while her mother was in the kitchen. One woman guest cast an appraising look at the little girl and then whispered to her friend: "Not very p-r-e-t-y."

"No," answered the child, "but awfully s-m-a-r-t."

The Allen-Scott Report

DeGaulle Isn't Idly Boasting Of N-Plans

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington, May 21 — President Charles de Gaulle isn't badly boasting when he says France will develop its own nuclear deterrent force.

By the end of 1963, France will have the fourth largest strategic nuclear striking power in the world. Only that of the U.S., Russia and Great Britain will be larger.

According to the latest U.S. Intelligence estimate, De Gaulle's nuclear striking force will consist of 60 long-range jet bombers capable of destroying the key industrial cities of either Russia or the U.S., and killing more than 20 million people.

To support this powerful striking force, De Gaulle is building up a stockpile of 120 nuclear bombs with explosive capabilities ranging from a few kilotons to 10 megatons.

The French will have an estimated 40 to 50 atomic bombs by the end of 1962. Already, they have tested five atomic weapons or devices.

Cost of developing De Gaulle's nuclear striking force is estimated to be approximately $2.5 billion. The French government is now paying the entire expense of this development, which will include an expenditure of $500 million this year.

There are recurring reports, however, that President de Gaulle and Chancellor Adenauer are nearing a secret agreement whereby the West Germans will help finance this costly nuclear stockpile.

If these reports are accurate, as U.S. Intelligence officials believe, this French-West German financial link could mean the first step toward establishment of an all-European nuclear force.

Help From Euratom — Already the Germans, through their representative on Euratom, the atomic energy organization within the European Common Market, are preparing to give De Gaulle's nuclear program a big boost.

This indirect help for France will flow from Euratom's huge $480 million, five-year atomic research and reactor development program, which was adopted at German insistence.

This massive research program, to be paid for by the six European Common Market members, will permit De Gaulle to shift funds from basic nuclear research and atomic reactor development to his more costly weapons program.

Under the Euratom research arrangement, France will share fully in all nuclear research, including work in the organization's largest laboratories at Ispra, Italy, and Petten, The Netherlands.

For example: Ispra has big computers, both digital and analog, which are necessary for reactor and weapons calculations. Use of these costly computers by French scientists will save France millions of dollars in its atomic program. Other Euratom installations from which the French will benefit are located in West Germany, Belgium and Luxembourg.

Strange as it may seem, the U.S. is also indirectly helping De Gaulle achieve his nuclear deterrent force although President Kennedy is opposed to it.

Under a joint atomic agreement, the U.S. is furnishing France with information on how to handle nuclear weapons. This military data, especially on how weapons are fitted in jet bombers, is proving valuable to the French.

Also, the U.S. is giving Euratom $3 million for basic nuclear research, the results of which will indirectly help France's nuclear weapons program.

Note: Far from longing for retirement, De Gaulle, at 71, is planning enough major projects for France to keep him busy at least until his term as President runs out at the end of 1965.

Inside Story — Despite published reports to the contrary, the battered royal Lao-tian troops gave a good account of themselves in the fighting at Houei Sai before retreating in the face of heavy attacking North Vietnamese and pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces.

A report on the fighting sent to the Joint Chiefs of Staff by U.S. military advisers in Laos states that the defending troops of General Phoumi Nosavan retreated only after they ran low on ammunition.

Also, these loyal Lao-tian troops were completely outgunned by the 316th North Vietnamese division that led the attack, with Soviet-made tanks and self-propelled artillery, including 20 SU-100s. The royal Lao-tian forces, equipped only with mortars and machineguns, had no fire power to match these heavier Communist weapons.

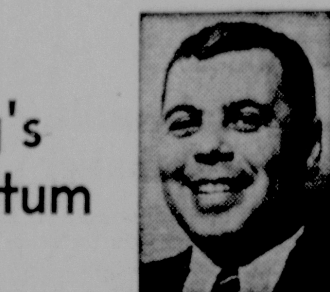

According to the report, two of the six government battalions that took part in the crucial engagement are still missing and presumed to have been completely destroyed in the attack. The four other battalions escaped by crossing into Thailand.

The U.S. military advisers in Laos had unsuccessfully requested permission from Washington to turn over heavy U.S. artillery to the Houei Sai garrison as early as last March.

They also warned of the attack against the government's last bastion in Northwestern Laos on May 1 when they reported that the Soviets were increasing their air drops of supplies in that area.

Looking Forward — Russia may be planning to try to orbit a man 50 times around the earth. This three-day flight is indicated by the latest Soviet satellite launching. The Red space capsule was brought back to earth after it had orbited the earth 50 times . . . The Soviets are seeking permission to establish satellite tracking stations in Australia and Brazil . . .

Frank M. Coffin, Deputy Administrator of the Agency for International Development, told a recent Washington conference on foreign aid and investment that, "The State Department's Policy Planning staff under Dr. Walt Rostow is taking on a new significance . . . the staff is proposing a number of important changes in our foreign policy."

Inside You And Yours

The Iceberg's Deviated Septum

By Burton H. Fern, M.D.
"Sue can smoke a cigar in the rain and not get it wet."

That's how boys teased her until she tripped and smashed her nose on the concrete!

The central partition inside the nose was shoved to one side — a deviated septum.

Like an iceberg, most of your nose lies deep beneath the surface. It stretches as far back as the roof of your mouth.

This giant cavity has to clean, warm and moisten gallons of incoming air. Moisture coating its sides isn't enough.

A central partition doubles the amount of available lining. Like a "flow-through teabag", four surfaces replace the old-fashioned two.

Both Smashed — Squeezed between bones, oversized partitions bend, buckle or twist. Each partition is bone above and cartilage below. Sue had smashed both. Any direct blow can.

The bulging septum narrows one side. Soon germs creep in and infection explodes.

Sue's deviated septum clogged both nostrils and sinuses, and pinched a nerve. She felt twinges around face and head.

The other nostril suffers, too.

Interviewing An American

Why are you critical of the Kennedy Administration?

When a nation is about to depart from the proven way of its ancestors there should be a pause at the crossroads. And the theory of the new way, at least, should be tested by challenge. The Kennedy Revolution threatens to change our way of life. The Administration's lust for power and its use of Police State methods should be of profound concern to every American. Now, as never before, the nation needs its Paul Reveres. While the Administration is groping for new objectives it is abandoning the sacred procedures inaugurated by the men who created this nation. The arrogance of politicians must be challenged by the intelligence of the people.

What can ordinary citizens do about it?

The ordinary extraordinary citizen can do a great deal. You can write to the White House. You can write to local editors. You can write to Congressmen. You can write to important your letters are, Politicians realize that every letter is a vote. As long as the Bill of Rights exists — public opinion will triumph. And as long as the public is vigilant — the Bill of Rights will endure.

How important is Southeast Asia to our security?

If Southeast Asia is overrun by Communism, it would eventually threaten the U.S. defense line in the Western Pacific. Such are the stern facts of geo-politics. Make no mistake about it — our defense line in the Western Pacific protects San Francisco, Chicago, New York and Kokomo.

Administration leaders talk about "guide-lines" which justify wage increases. What does it signify?

Pure double-talk. The so-called guide-lines can be as elastic as a rubber ball. Political expediency can stretch them to inflationary extremes. You can wager the Administration won't do anything that might cost it votes in 1964 — or in the Congressional elections this year . . . Poli-

With twice as much air tunneling through, lining moisture also settles here.

Your nose is caught in a vicious circle. Obstruction magnifies congestion which, in turn, magnifies obstruction and so on and on.

Surgery Fixes It — Delicate surgery can recenter and reshape the nose. Through a tiny slit in the lining, the surgeon works his way around both sides, trimming away excess bone and cartilage.

After her operation, Sue had two black eyes and a puffy face. The doctor had told her to expect this.

New Nose — When swelling finally went down, she found she had a tiny turned-up nose and she could breathe through both sides.

As her nose shrank, her personality expanded. Today she's happy, popular and no longer the butt of any cigar-smoking joke!

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Fern in care of this newspaper.

Just Between Us — —

—By Bobby Westbrook

The ingenuity of our very young matrons is always a delightful discovery. Somehow in the minds of their elders who have seen them growing up, they remain frozen in the sort of giggly teenage stage in which we knew them best.

Reasonably we know they've grown up, but it still is impressive when they achieve what seems the impossible — like Barbara Wellington Talmage not only managing to keep calm, cool and collected herself in entertaining about 30 people on the hottest day of the year, but keeping her house the same way.

All this in the face of the news that instead of leaving for the party as planned, her mother Kathryn Wellington, had left for the General Hospital for an emergency appendectomy. There are many hostesses of all ages who would have wilted under much less responsibility.

A lot of people wilted in yesterday's heat but not the art lovers; they turned out in full force and complete with white gloves for the reception which marked the opening of Betty Letimer's one-man show at the Pocono Art Center gallery yesterday. Love of art can do wonders but I suspect that it was also love of Betty that got the men into jackets and ties and their wives into girdles on a day like that.

But love of Betty had little to do with the evaluation of her painting by fellow artists, since she had deliberately kept her identity a secret, singing the 28 paintings Rentiell (Letimer spelled backwards, watch) so that the paintings could be judged on their own merits.

Which is what you might enjoy doing, too. In case you missed the exhibition yesterday, it will be open Wednesday afternoon and Thursday night. It's really impressive — and like having her famous floral arrangements non-wilting, and a joy forever.

Nothing is more beautiful than a sunshiny daffodil in Springtime . . . and nothing is more precious to a parent whose child is retarded than such a flower, made to bloom by his or her own child, from such things as colored paper and hours of painstaking effort. A week ago Wednesday evening, these pretty paper flowers with stems and leaves of green, brightened each place setting at the annual dinner of Monroe County's Association for Retarded Children at the YMCA. Each daffodil center was a cup, filled with tiny mints.

I felt honored to be included among the guests, others of whom were Ruth Brown, president of the Monroe County Crippled Children's Association and her co-worker, Sally Rosenkrans; Representative Van D. Yetter; Mrs. Primrose, president of the Junior Women's Club; YMCA Secretary, John Wilson; Mrs. Lester Katz, president of Stroud Community Club, and Ray Roberts, representing the Junior Chamber of Commerce. I mention these as they sat near me at table, but I am sure there were other guests, among them many fine looking young men and women from our State College who, under the direction of Dr. Reed of the physical education department, donate their services each Monday night of the school year to teach swimming, gymnastics, and shop to the retarded children who meet at the Y.

Dr. Reed spoke briefly, telling of the interest the retarded and handicapped are showing in the Y classes, and stressing the fact that those who participate in the Y program have never become involved with the police, although many have said that when not otherwise occupied they "roam the streets a lot." This, of course, is understandable, for many of them have few friends and interests. It is one of many big arguments to be advanced in behalf of an enlarged program for the mentally retarded and physically handicapped in our area. As the guest speaker, Robert T. King, a member of the state board of Pennsylvania Association for Retarded Children pointed out, we must not allow either the public or the handicapped child to develop the attitude, "What's the use?" but must embark upon a dedicated, determined, and definite program to assure that EVERY human being will be wanted, loved, and encouraged to the point where he or she may travel the streets of his or her community in dignity and self-respect.

Mr. King, a distinguished looking gentleman who speaks in a quiet, almost gentle voice, is himself the parent of a retarded son—the third child born into an otherwise normal, healthy family. A retarded child is at once a bafflement and a challenge, he explained. "Parents must be strict with all children," he asserted, but very early he himself learned "they must be doubly so with the retarded and the gifted." He further stressed the fact that the mentally retarded are not the concern simply of the parents involved, but should be a community concern. He quoted these alarming figures to bolster his contention: right this minute in our country there are 21,000,000 lives touched by mental retardation. If the current birth rate continues and present day percentages continue to hold, by the year 2050 there will be two billion people in the United States of whom 60 million will be retarded.

For the present we need more public education regarding mental retardation so that all of us may face the problem more humanely. We need services for the retarded and their families covering such fields as child guidance, family counseling, public health nursing care, day camps, etc.; also—more religious training facilities, guidance programs, and programs to help both institutions and the children in them, as well as further legislation to make it possible for retarded children to be developed to their fullest potential. But most of all, Mr. King declared, we need a research program that will gradually push back the horizon so that we learn why some children are born retarded while others are not. The great hope is that scientists in laboratories can unlock many doors and perhaps work miracles as they have so often done in other diseases and afflictions. I am pleased I attended the meeting, and proud I was invited to do so. I truly wish all of you might have been there, for when all of us stand together and work together it's amazing what can be accomplished for the good of all.

CLEVELAND (AP)—Al Kaline slammed two home runs in power hitting to a 3-6 victory over Cleveland after the Indians squeezed by the Tigers 7-6 in the opener of a home-field double-header Sunday.

Kaline, who leads the league in homers, was the batting hero for the Tigers with six hits in nine at bats. He walloned two homers to doubles and two singles and drove in five runs, three in the nightcap, on his 11th and 12th homers.

Easton, Palmerton Win Dist. XI Titles

EASTON High School won Class A and Palmerton the Class B titles Saturday at the 30th annual District XI PIAA track and field meet held at Pottsville High Stadium.

Two records were set and another was tied. Billy Heydt bettered his own discus mark of a year ago as he led Palmerton to repeat as Class B champions. Easton swept six first in gaining the school's second Class A crown.

Ralph Burrows of East Stroudsburg, District XI committee chairman, said next year's competition will take place in Allentown on a Friday night under the lights. He presented trophies to the champions.

The Class A pole vaulting record set a year ago by Leighton's Roy Semmel was the only other standard cleared. Warren Snyder of Nazareth fared 13 ft. 1-8 inch in setting the new mark. The old record was 11-11 1/4.

Hal Peters was clocked in 22 seconds flat in winning the Class A 220 which tied the district record post last year by Nazareth's Jeff Marsh.

Easton piled up 8 points in defeating Bethlehem which finished second with 33 7-10; Nazareth was third with 20. All 16 Class A teams scored.

Palmerton amassed 6 1/2 points, almost as many as last year (65) and was challenged by Palisades and Pen Argyl, who tallied 42 and 39 points.

Cassius Halts Daniels In 7th

NEW YORK (AP)—Young Cassius Clay of Louisville stopped Billy Daniels of New York on bats in the seventh round of a battle of unbeaten heavyweights at St. Nicholas Arena Saturday night.

Referee Mark Conn halted the contest at 2:21 of the seventh of the television fight because of a nasty cut over Daniels' left eye.

It hampered his vision," said the referee. Daniels was gashed over the eye in the third round and bled freely the rest of the way.

Dr. Sam Swetnick had visited Daniels' corner after the fourth, fifth and sixth rounds.

Although the 5-1 favorite Clay had a good lead, he didn't show too well against the 25-year-old barber who twice hurt the cocky Kentuckian with long rights to the jaw.

North Beats South, 13-12 In Cotton Bowl Classic

DALLAS, TEXAS—The North, captained by Harold Myers of East Stroudsburg High School, won a hard-earned 13-12 victory over the South in the 14th annual All-America High School football game at the Cotton Bowl, Saturday night.

Ronald Acks, a six-foot-two, 193-pounder from Carbondale, Ill., was the big gun, turning from defense to offense in the second half to lead his team to the triumph.

Myers, who was named to captain the North squad earlier in the week, made important contributions to the North's win.

First Down
Myers made a first down with six-yard run in the first North touchdown drive that had apparently stalled. His 12-yard run got another drive underway. This one, however, did not get a touchdown but it kept the North in possession of the ball for some time and that helped since the South was making strong surges every time it got the pigskin.

Myers netted 13 yards in four carries, with a 3.2 average. (Myers arrived home yesterday afternoon by jet plane in a trip that took about 2 1/2 hours. Aboard the plane also were his parents.)

(Myers said he played all but two minutes of the game, playing both offensively and defensively. He said he played left wing back for Doak Walker (North coach) who used the double wing formation.

Completes Passes
Acks threw three passes, all complete, for 74 yards in the drive which actually covered that much distance due to penalties. The winning heave was a 34-yard toss to Ronald Labeau of Monroe, Michigan.

The North had scored the first time it got the ball with Tom Drzenovich of Nashauk, Minn., scampering the final eleven yards after he had caught 10 and 19 yard passes from Horner.

The South scored on a break in the third period when Don Chancelor of Macon, Miss., pounced on a fumble on the one-foot line and QB Curt Cook of Tulsa, Okla., sneaked through right guard for the score.

A fumbled snap from center spoiled the conversion try. Cook cranked up a South drive in the final eight minutes and led the Rebels 73 yards to the second touchdown. But Hugh McCarb of Oklahoma City was stopped just shy of the goal line on a two-point conversion try.

Coaches for the contest were Sammy Baugh for the South team and Doak Walker for the North.

Walker's first-string backs were announced as quarterback Tom Horner of Salem, Ill., halfbacks Tom Drzenovich, of Nashauk, Minn., and Harold Myers, of East Stroudsburg High of Bushkill, and fullback Steve Balkovec, of Omaha, Neb.

Walker also listed two other Pennsylvanians besides Myers on the starting line. They were Bill Malinchak, of Monessen and Ed Stanko of McKeesport, both ends.

This was Musial's 2,109th single. He also was hit 699 doubles, 174 triples and 449 home runs. He has covered 100 miles just running out his hits.

Musial now holds 41 National League records.

On the morning of May 10, Musial was hitting .394. Sunday morning his average was .316. "I never worked for two hits so hard in my life," Stan said. "I didn't think I was under pressure but I realize now that I was."

"I could feel the pulse of the fans going for me. And I was going after bad balls."

"When I finally got to first base after breaking the record, I felt so relaxed I could have fallen over. That's when I realized the pressure had been on."

Immediately, the announcement that Musial had broken the record was flashed on the enormous message board at Dodger Stadium. Don Landrum went in to run for Musial and Stan got a standing ovation from many in the crowd of 50,103 as he left the field. (They had little else to applaud, for the Dodgers lost the game 8-1.)

"I could feel the pulse of the fans going for me. And I was going after bad balls."

"When I finally got to first base after breaking the record, I felt so relaxed I could have fallen over. That's when I realized the pressure had been on."

Immediately, the announcement that Musial had broken the record was flashed on the enormous message board at Dodger Stadium. Don Landrum went in to run for Musial and Stan got a standing ovation from many in the crowd of 50,103 as he left the field. (They had little else to applaud, for the Dodgers lost the game 8-1.)

ACCOUNTING AND BOOKKEEPING

Local CP Unit To Hold '53-Minute March' Tuesday

TOMORROW evening 250 United Cerebral Palsy of Monroe County "53 Minute" volunteer marchers will call upon the homes of their neighbors in behalf of the cerebral palsied of our county.

The "53 Minute Marchers" hope to reach their goal of $3,000. This will provide the therapy, treatment and training services needed to the cerebral palsied children and adults in Monroe County.

As they call at each home the education material pointing out the fact that cerebral palsy strikes every 53 minutes and emphasizing that those handicapped by cerebral palsy are everyone's neighbors.

The 1962 theme of United Cerebral Palsy's annual "53 Minute March" is: "If She Lived Next Door, Would You Help?" The public education material also describes the program of service for the cerebral palsied at United Cerebral Palsy of Northampton-Monroe Counties.

"I urge all residents of Monroe County to open their door to the United Cerebral Palsy Marcher in their neighborhood tomorrow evening. The need is great, and through this drive everyone will have an opportunity to help our community neighbors - those handicapped for life by cerebral palsy," Mrs. Seymour Pollan, Director, stated.

The results of the drive should be tabulated very quickly. Both the East Stroudsburg National Bank and the First Stroudsburg National Bank will remain open

Poconos Will Host State Jaycees Activity June 22-23

THE 1962 "Teenage Roadie" activity of the Pennsylvania Junior Chamber of Commerce will be held in the Poconos on June 22 and 23, Ray Roberts, local Jaycee President announced today. This competition for teenage driving winners from local chapters across the state, will be held at the East Stroudsburg State College. The Pocono Mountain Chapter of the Jaycees will be the host chapter for the several hundred guest competitors, and their Jaycee sponsors.

Stanley Grace and William Johnson, local Jaycees, are the co-chairmen of this event won on the basis of competitive bids to the state organization. Johnson, who presented the bid in Harrisburg on Saturday, cited the attraction of the Poconos as the biggest single factor in winning the bid. Part of the plans for the visitors is a short tour of several of the key resorts in this area.

Significant is the fact that this will be the second time the local Jaycees have won the award of hosting this event in their short history. Also, the normal pattern is to assign the State Teenage Roadie Competition to larger chapters. Roberts expressed his appreciation to Grace and Johnson in getting this event scheduled in this community and also stated his confidence in the Pocono Mountain Chapter's ability to again do an outstanding job.

WE ALREADY HAVE . . .

MEDICAL CARE FOR THE AGED

The Kerr-Mills Law was passed by Congress in 1960 to allow Pennsylvania (and all other states) to provide medical care and hospitalization to persons over 65 who need help. This law deserves continued support and improved implementation by our state officials.

Without giving the Kerr-Mills Law a fair chance, the Federal Administration and some members of Congress are now urging passage of the Social Security financed King-Anderson Bill.

THE KING-ANDERSON BILL, NOW BEFORE CONGRESS, WOULD PROVIDE LIMITED HEALTH CARE BENEFITS FOR PERSONS OVER 65 ELIGIBLE FOR SOCIAL SECURITY. BUT YOU ARE ENTITLED TO KNOW WHAT APPEARS IN THE "FINE PRINT" OF THE BILL.

- It would force every worker to pay 17% more payroll taxes to provide benefits for millions of the wealthy and self-reliant who can well afford to take care of themselves.
- It would not provide any benefits to the 3,500,000 not covered by Social Security — the group most in need.
- It would cover less than 25% of the health care costs of those eligible for the benefits.
- It would not cover your doctor bill (family doctor, surgeon, etc.)
- It would not provide nursing home care unless the patient first was admitted to a hospital.
- It would not be an "insurance" program . . . it would be a tax and welfare plan.
- It provides that hospitals and nursing homes must operate under regulations established by the Federal Government.
- It would cost each beneficiary $90.00 for the first nine days of hospitalization (minimum $20.00).
- It would cost each out-patient beneficiary $20.00 for each complete diagnostic study.
- It would be socialized medicine for that part of the population covered.

EVERY AMERICAN who realizes the importance of free enterprise in the United States should WRITE HIS CONGRESSMAN in Washington 25, D. C. Urge him to vigorously oppose the King-Anderson Bill. LET'S KEEP POLITICS OUT OF MEDICINE!
